It is a multidisciplinary approach of research and draws on environmental chemistry, physics, meteorology, computer modeling, oceanography, geology and volcanology and other disciplines. Research is increasingly connected with other arenas of study ... By looking very intently at the LAST BLADE of GRASS at one end of the field (today's temps), Fake Science claims to know the average and the extremes for every blade of grass on the previous 100 yards of field "with precision!! $\hat{A} \pm 5$, $22 \hat{A} \pm 2$, and $10 \hat{A} \pm 1$ years are similar to solar periodicities and hence may represent solar forcing, while the components peaking at around 7.6, 6.3, 5.2, 4.7, and 4.2 years apparently falls in the frequency bands of El-Nino-Southern Oscillations linked to the oceanic internal processes. By starting their trend in 1901 rather than 1895 (as above from Karl, 1988), Karl and Jones (1989) could claim there was a net temperature increase of $0.16 \hat{A}^\circ\text{C}$ during the 20th century, or as of 1901- $\hat{A}^{\text{TM}}84$. Global Warming "Just Facts" - In response to those who complained in my recent post that linear trends are not a good way to compare the models to observations (even though the modelers have claimed that it's the long-term behavior of the models we should focus on, not individual years), here are running 5-year averages for ...
